Dear Mr. Sarnen Steinbarth,

I found your job posting on craigslist this morning, and was excited because it's exactly the kind of job that I'm looking for. I am familiar with the Galvanize campus because I regularly attend Million Cups meetings there. I'm interested in working with start-ups, which lead me to seek my computer skills in a somewhat non-conventional way. I do have an Associate's Degree, for which I took many business classes including the Microsoft Office Suite, but more recently I graduated from the WebLab front-end coding boot camp, leaving me ready for tweaking web sites as well as other office work. I am available immediately, having just finished my job at the Poudre School District. Thank you for reading my letter and considering me. I look forward to playing ping pong with you soon.

Sincerely,

Catherine Cuthbert
